“a very well written, useful booklet that not only explains how marketing is aimed at kids, but importantly, outlines practical ideas on managing the effects of this”

Dr Linda Papadopoulos, Psychologist

Labelled for Life is a book full of ideas and strategies to help give you the confidence to handle the pressures put on you as a parent. Full of helpful tips and suggestions, it will help you manage your child's expectations and build their awareness of the advertising industries around them.

Labelled for Life includes:

How marketing is aimed at your child

Worried about how children are being targeted by adverts and the impact this may have on their wellbeing? This section gives details of the latest marketing and advertising strategies.

Managing commercial influences on your child

Want to protect your child online but don't know how? We have practical advice about the technological safeguards available.

Getting your views heard

Angered by something your children have seen on the TV but don't know who to speak to in order to raise your concern? This section provides information on who to make your complaints to.

Taking further action

Is the commercialisation of children something you feel strongly about? Make a stand and help keep this issue at the top of the agenda in the UK and Ireland.
